Our STORY...

“Founders Steven Chavez and Justin English were fraternity brothers at the University of Colorado in Boulder. Following graduation, they each embarked on individual entrepreneurial pursuits only to reconnect a decade later for a collaboration that became SPARQ Home. With their common passion for serving the environment as their beacon, Steven and Justin created a company that continues to challenge the boundaries of design and that is fueled by their parallel interest in re-animating the entertaining space. Since the start of their journey together, they’ve expanded SPARQ’s kitchen couture product line to include hundreds of unique items that are all design-centric and environmentally deliberate. They are both married and raising young children in beautiful Denver, Colorado.”

Our MISSION...

SPARQ Home was founded on a mission to preserve nature’s soapstone quarries across the globe. In most quarries, up to 80% of all soapstone mined is deemed waste or scrap material. For businesses like kitchen construction, large and flawless slabs of soapstone are hard to come by. When each cut of stone is evaluated and deemed as either useable or scrap, the scrap stone far outweighs the useful slabs. These blocks of scrap stone are then simply tossed to the side of the roads to and from the quarries, destroying the landscape aesthetically and environmentally. Like so many other unfortunate instances of humans exploiting nature, these soapstone quarries leave behind a butchered mess of broken blocks, torn down trees and muddy roads. After witnessing the waste, founders Chavez & English embarked on a journey to clean up the disastrous quarries worldwide and find a purpose for the discarded soapstone. Sparq Home was born in 2012 from their efforts, and the entire Sparq Home line is hand-crafted from this recycled soapstone. Located in Denver, Colorado, we’re working daily to turn waste into beautifully designed products - from our hearts to your home.
